

As part of the 'Caring for Country' activity being facilitated by West Arnhem Regional Council, SoundED visited Warruwi this week to collaborate with young people on creating the regional song.

CARING FOR COUNTRY ACTIVITY

West Arnhem Regional Council is rolling out an exciting youth education initiative these school holidays, focusing on engaging young people in a powerful 'Caring for Country' message.

Across the region, kids will take part in a creative project aimed at raising awareness about the impact of litter and how we all can play a part in litter reduction.

As part of the initiative, SoundED, will visit each West Arnhem community to collaborate with young people on creating a regional song.

The song, focused on "Stop the Drop," will highlight how litter affects Country, combining video, music, and lyrics to deliver a message of sustainability in a fun and interactive way.

West Arnhem Regional Council Services Manager, Geri Narul, expressed her excitement about the initiative.

"Raising awareness about the impact of litter and how we all can play a part in litter reduction.."

Geri said, "Our goal is to see our West Arnhem Communities waste-free in the near future and this project is a great way to send a strong message to everyone across the West Arnhem communities about how important it is to look after our country."

Council looks forward to seeing the results and encourages everyone to stay tuned for updates on the song's release and upcoming community events where the final project will be launched.

SoundED's tour dates for the West Arnhem Region include:

- Minjilang: 24 - 26 September
- Warruwi: 26 - 27 September
- Maningrida: 1 - 4 October
- Jabiru: Monday, 7 October (all day) and Wednesday, 9 October (after school)

MAJOR PROJECTS UNDERWAY ACROSS REGION

West Arnhem Regional Council have been busy the last few months, hard at work improving the infrastructure across our Communities, making sure there's something for everyone!

With the new resurfaced roads in Maningrida, Waruwi and Gunbalanya, it was brilliant to get assistance from the NTG to help ensure the safety of all roads. Thank you!

Alternative access gates at the Maningrida Airport have also been installed for sorry business.

In Minjilang, we are thrilled the Crèche has reopened, following extensive roof and interior repairs.

The crèche is an important part of the Minjilang Community which supports local families.

The other few projects on the horizon are:

In Maningrida, groundwork has started for the construction of the much-anticipated oval changerooms. This major project, funded by NIAA, will be a game changer for all sport and recreation in the Community.

And the Waruwi Recreation Hall re-roof is underway, and we can't wait to see the work completed.

It's a good time to be in the Western region!

SHARING STORIES IN KUNWINJKU AND ENGLISH

By Jeanette Djidjnguk

This is a story about me and my family visiting Ardarra.

Ardarra is about an hour or more drive kakbi karrikad (north-west) from Gunbalanya on Wardadjabak and Amurdak language country. It's near another place called Benuk Kadjang (Bush Turkey dreaming). We go to Ardarra from Gunbalanya whenever we can get a motorcar on weekends or holidays, same as we go to many other places. Whenever we get to Ardarra, we set up our stuff, like birndu-ken (mozzie nets) as we make a place to sleep near a mankaboyahwurd (small creek). Ardarra has lovely short grass for camping, and when we're there we can smell the perfume from mannguy (flowers) in the nearby forest.

When I was ten years old, me and my parents and my family went on the weekend for camping at Ardarra. One night we had dinner, then we all slept. Then at kukabel (morning coming, at about six o'clock) my grandfather Johnny Djogiba, whose skin group was Nawamud, and who I called mamam (mother's father), heard a noise. It was coming from the forest and creek, as if someone was talking. My grandfather could hear the sound coming closer and closer towards us. Something or someone was saying 'djidjnguk...djidjnguk'. Then he saw it was a Djidjnguk man, coming out of the forest right at that moment.

My grandpa heard and saw that Djidjnguk, then woke up his wife, Wendy Nabegeyo, whose skin group was Ngalkodjok. She was my ngalkinbalen (mother's mother). He said to her, "Ngalkodjok, wake up! There's a djidjnguk walking towards us! Can you hear him talking and walking along the side of that small creek?"

"Ardarra is about an hour or more drive kakbi karrikad (north-west) from Gunbalanya on Wardadjabak and Amurdak language country.."

She woke, sat up, listened and looked. She could hear Djidjnguk talking as he walked towards us, and then she saw him too. Grandma turned around and said to her husband, "Nakka nungka Djidjnguk kamhre, kambokadjung mankabo!" (That's him! That's the Djidjnguk man, walking this way following the small creek).

They kept looking at Djidjnguk. He was carrying his spear and dilly bag, on his morning hunt looking for djenj (fish) in the creek, not far from where we were camped. Djidjnguk is short, fat and hairy. He looks a bit like the Ewok in Star Wars.

And when he gets kabangmen (angry), his eyes go red.

My grandparents kept watching as he walked away, and they said, "that Djidjnguk is going back into the forest now, because kamdungbebbe darnkih" (sun's just rising up). It was nearly 7 o'clock. They kept hearing "djidjnguk...djidjnguk... djidjnguk...." until he disappeared into the thick forest.

They said to each other, "we will tell a story about this to our family when they wake up, including the kids Jeanette and Andrianna. We will tell them we saw a Djidjnguk man". When we all woke up, we had breakfast, some weetbix, bacon and wirlarrk (eggs). Then our grandparents told us the story of Djidjnguk.

That's why I remember the story of Djidjnguk at Ardarra, from when I was camping there with my cousin sister Andrianna and my grandparents, my parents, my aunties Jill and Leah, my two uncles Alfred and Ralph, and my four brothers, who were Jill's, Marlene's and Leah's sons. It was a real Djidjnguk man that my grandparents saw.

Many families often tell stories about Djidjnguk, because there are nawern (lots and lots of them) in the forest at Ardarra. Today you will still see a Djidjnguk man if you go and camp there, if you listen and keep your eyes open.

NEW JABIRU HEALTH CENTRE NOW OPEN

The new Jabiru Health Centre is now officially open, with primary health services delivered by Aboriginal Community Controlled Health Organisation (ACCHO), Red Lily Health Board Aboriginal Corporation (Red Lily).

The new $20 million purpose-built health centre will increase access to medical services in the West Arnhem region. As the main health provider in Kakadu National Park, the health centre will serve both residents and tourists.

The new health centre features eight consulting suites, including paediatric rooms, four multi-purpose allied health examination rooms, a four-chair renal ready room, and a dental surgery complete with sterilisation and work rooms, dedicated male and female waiting areas and a health store.

Specialised facilities include an audiology consulting room with a hearing booth, an X-ray room, a four-berth morgue with a viewing area and an external, culturally appropriate ceremony area adjacent to the morgue.

There are also emergency capabilities at the health centre, such as a drive through ambulance bay and an emergency department with two resuscitation bays.

NT Health will continue to provide community support, including visiting specialist services such as paediatrics, dental care, hearing services, mental health support and alcohol and other drug treatment services.

The new centre is located at 7 Tasman Crescent, Jabiru. For more information, call the centre on 08 8979 9900.

For more information about Red Lily, visit: redlily.org.au.

Chair of Red Lily Health Board June Nadjamerrek said, "Red Lily Health Board welcomes the opportunity to provide culturally-appropriate health care from a 'purpose-built' facility in Jabiru.

"We are pleased that local people and Aboriginal Corporations were consulted in the design of the new health centre in addressing the specific needs in renal and child health care, as well as ensuring enhanced morgue and mourning facilities on site.

"Red Lily thank the Northern Territory Government for their commitment to community control and local decision-making."

Adjunct Professor Christine Connors, Chief Health Officer, NTHealth said, "The availability of quality healthcare in remote communities is critical to achieving our responsibility to provide care as close to home as possible that is culturally safe and responsive.

"The new Jabiru Health Centre will ensure that, now and into the future, residents and visitors to the area will have access to state-of-the art facilities.

"We look forward to continuing to work with Red Lily to support care that meets the dynamic needs of the West Arnhem community, helping to achieve the best health outcomes for Territorians."

Recently, they were out at Wigu Point hunting some mud crabs. It is great to integrate cultural learning activities into the program.

DIAMOND CREEK NETBALLERS VISIT JABIRU LIBRARY

The Jabiru Library received a special visit from the Diamond Creek Netball team on Thursday, 26 September. The group of 25 netballers join the Jabiru school holiday program, engaging with young local kids through a variety of fun activities.

While outside, the netballers introduced the children to netball skills. While promoting a healthy and active lifestyle, this also introduced the kids to a new sport.

Some of the group also played lego and did colouring-in with the kids at the library.

The young athletes from Diamond Creek enjoyed interacting with the children, who in turn offered them insights into life in Jabiru.

Jabiru Librarian Jillian May said it was great to see young people interested in Kakadu National Park.

Jill also gave the group a quick run down on local language and shared some keywords, while also promoting the Bininj Kunwok Language group. Nice work girls!
